

LOCAL MARIACHI BAND TRAPPED IN BOTTLE

Erie, Colorado mariachi band “¡Los Fiestamigos!” found their souls magically shrunken, liquified, and trapped inside bottles this Monday.

Labeled as The Old Mine’s newest cocktail, the “Hibiscus Margarita” drinks are crafted with 100% agave tequila, orange liqueur, lime and lemon juice, organic agave, actual Jamaica hibiscus flowers from Mexico, and contain a sliver of the souls of each of the band members (excluding bass guitarist Juan Ruiz who happened to be out of state visiting family when the magical event occurred).

Lead singer Rodrigo Aguilar explained how it all happened: “We were playing a Cinco de Mayo cul-de-sac party near County Line Road singing ‘La Bamba’—by request for the tenth time—when all of a sudden this wild-eyed strawberry-brunette-headed gringo yelled some sort of incantation at us and—whoosh!—we were gone! Now we live inside of these Hibiscus Margaritas, available to-go at The Old Mine or The Handlebar Factory. Yes, they’re delicious, but we’d kind of like to go home some time soon.”

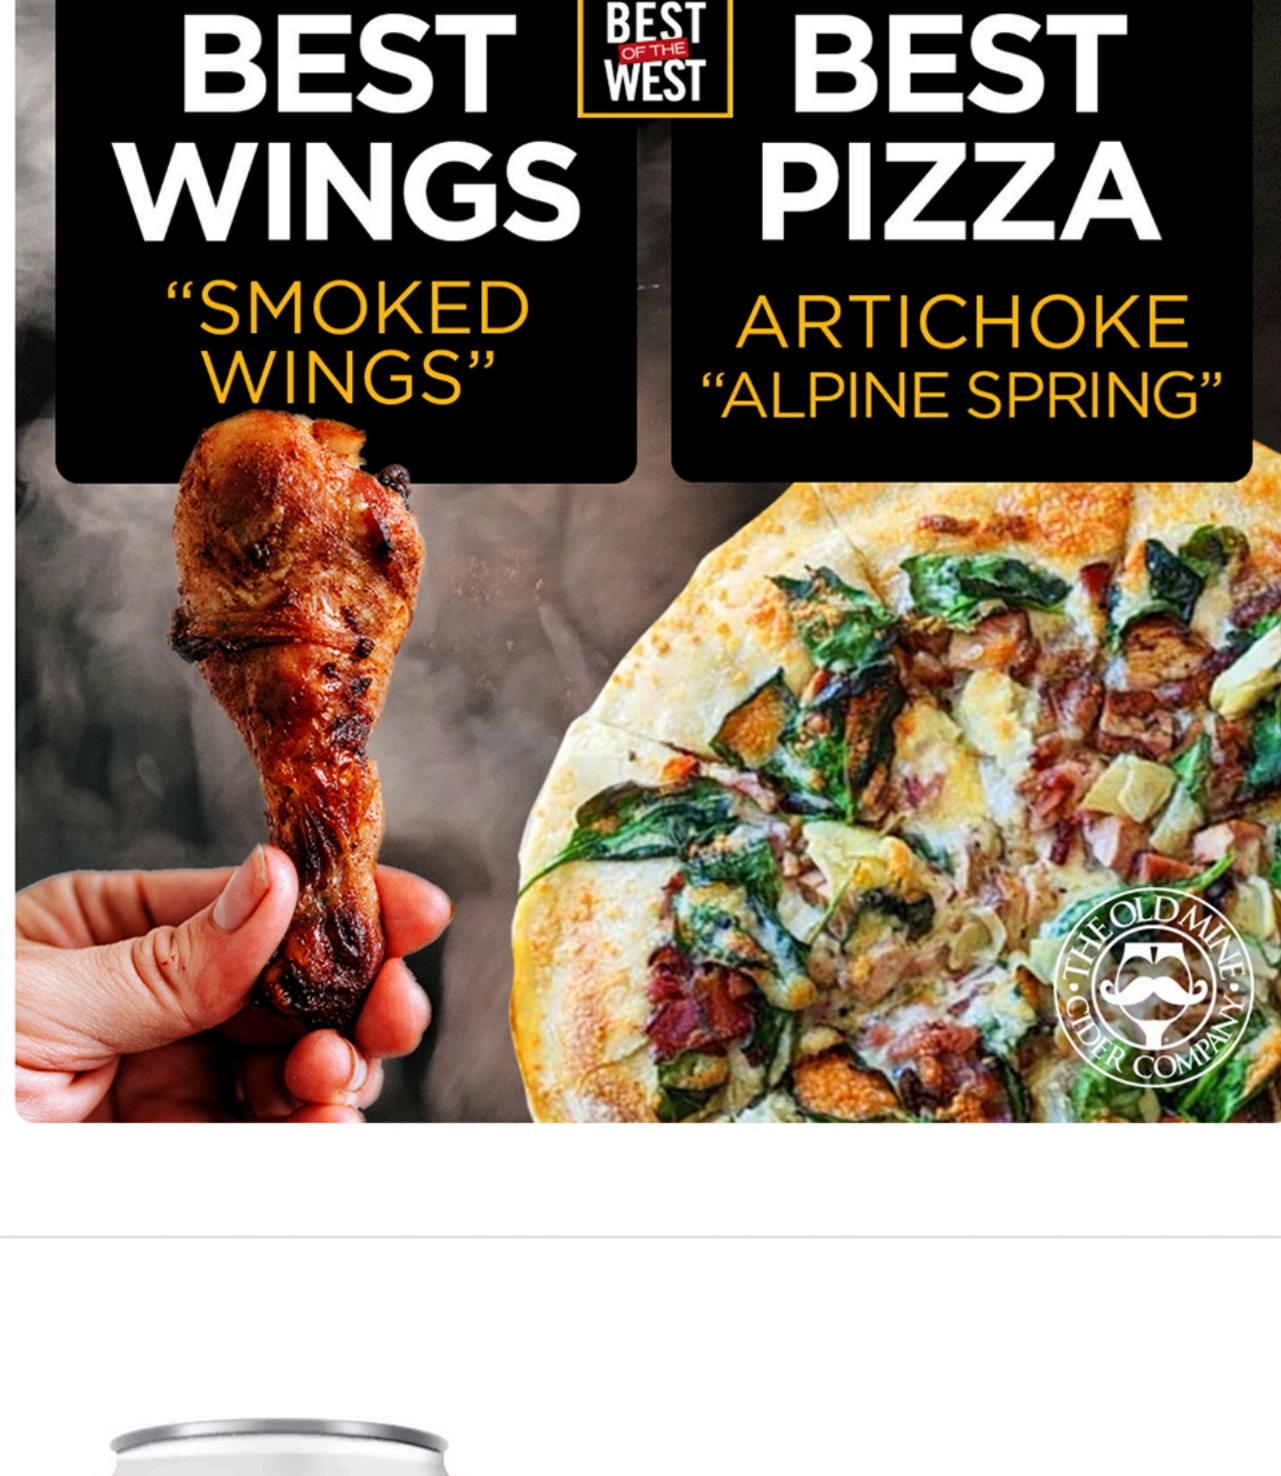

The Old Mine’s Mike Yeager defends the act claiming, “How else are we going to make drinkers feel like they’re being serenaded by a lively mariachi band with every sip?! Now all of us can enjoy a Hibiscus Margarita either one glass at a time at The Old Mine and Handlebar Factory, or in a big to-go bottle for home!”

As of yet, there’s no word on how they got the flavor of massive guitar riffs inside the bottles as well.
